WARE STUDENTS RECEIVE A LITTLE HELP FROM THEIR NEIGHBORS

Ware kindergarten and first grade students are benefitting from a little extra help from some of their neighbors at Shelburne Middle School – the 8th grade National Junior Honor Society members. As a part of their membership in the Honor Society, students are encouraged to engage in meaningful service activities for their schools and communities. Every Wednesday after dismissal at Shelburne, these students go next door to Ware Elementary to work with kindergarteners and first graders, providing extra support in reading and math.

Nora Oechslin works on reading and spelling with 1st grader Jae'Lynn Warren

Damien Wade works on counting money with 1st graders Justin Goff, Kendra Moyers, Summer Purvis, and Brianna Abshire.

Alex Erler reads with kindergarten student, Serenity DeLuca.

BESSIE WELLER STUDENTS CREATE “SHAPE CITY OF STAUNTON”

Kindergarteners in Mrs. Kester’s class at Bessie Weller used shapes to recreate the City of Staunton. The students thought of different landmarks throughout the City and built them using the shapes that they knew. They constructed the Trolley, Sears Hill Bridge, Robert E. Lee High School, Gypsy Hill Duck Pond, and many more.

Kindergarten students Larry Veal and Bria Turner show off the shape city.
